Alterations Alleged In Nixon Home Data

By FRED P. GRAHAM

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—The chairman of a Congressional panel investigating public spending on President Nixon's private homes said today that large accounts pertaining to Mr. Nixon's property at San Clemente, Calif., released earlier this week by the White House, had been altered [illegible] ately.

Representative [illegible] Democrat of [illegible] chairman of the [illegible] ment Activities [illegible] said that some [illegible] containing a legal [illegible] of 25 acres of San [illegible] property, sold by the [illegible] to two of his friends, [illegible] erased and the [illegible] veying company's [illegible] orders from Mr. Nixon's personal attorney.

A White House spokesman, Gerald L. Warren, said at San Clemente [illegible] Brooks was making [illegible] about nothing." [illegible] asked a letter from [illegible] Harlow, President [illegible] to Mr. Brooks, that, he said, shows that there is nothing whatever improper or irregular about the [illegible]

At a news conference on Capitol Hill today, Mr. Brooks said that he had written to Mr. Harlow asking for an explanation of "inconsistencies and inaccuracies" in some of the documents on San Clemente released by the White House. Mr. Brooks emphasized that he was making "no charge or accusation."

In his news conference, however, Mr. Brooks raised questions about a sales agreement dated Dec. 15, 1970, between President and Mrs. Nixon and Robert H. Abplanalp and C. G. Rebozo, two wealthy friends who helped finance the President's purchase of San Clemente and to whom the President sold a large part of the property.

Specifically, Mr. Brooks questioned the dating and attachments to the sales agreement that contained the legal description of the parcels of property reserved to the President and those transferred to the B. & C. Investment Company, the company organized by Mr. Abplanalp and Mr. Rebozo.

Erasure Alleged

The staff reported Mr. Brooks reported that the survey company, also South [illegible] Engineering Services, [illegible] the original and [illegible] the corrections were made after the Dec. 15 date. The dates were made in the bureau of Arnold Dekkenco [illegible] Mr. Nixon's lawyer, Mr. Brooks said.

He said that Mr. Dekkenco had insisted, when asked that no changes had been made on the documents, Mr. Dekkenco would not respond to a newsman's question.

However, one of the owners of the survey concern, William Ayer, confirmed when questioned today that the change had been made on the documents at Mr. Dekkenco's request.

Mr. Brooks said that records in the possession of his committee showed that the descriptions of the property were [illegible] prepared, [illegible] on Dec. 15, 1970, and [illegible] contained in the sales agreement [illegible]
